Why .Net?

- It's been part of enterprise projects for decades
- Microsoft is listening and responding
- New tools, like Visual Studio Code, lower the barrier of entry
- There is immediate need by employers:

The screenshot shows the Indeed job search interface. At the top, the search bar contains '.net' and 'Dayton, OH'. A yellow box highlights the search results count: 'Show: all jobs - 109 new jobs'. Below the search bar, there are filters for 'what' (job title, keywords, or company) and 'where' (city, state, or zip). The main content area displays a list of job results, including 'Application and Database Developer' at Support Financial Resources, Inc. and 'Applications Developer' at Links Unlimited, Inc. The left sidebar shows 'Recommended Jobs - 1 new' and 'My recent searches'.

Why Microsoft SQL?

- SSIS - Integrations Service
- SSRS - Reporting Service
- SSAS - Analysis Service
- It's had a steady return
